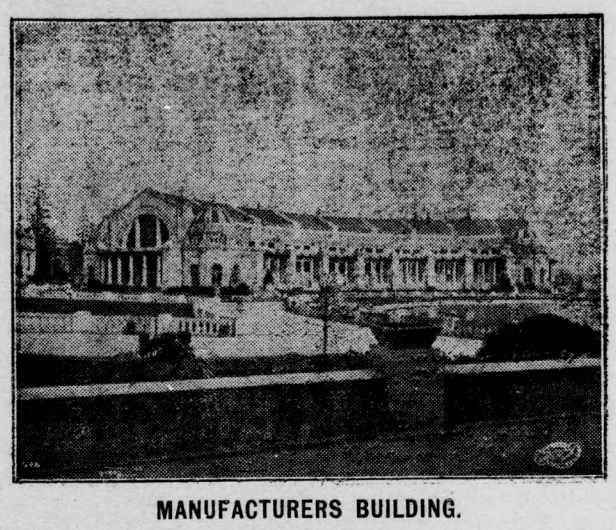
FOURTEENTH YEAR — CAMPBELL, SANTA CLARA CO., CAL., FRIDAY, JUNE 11, 1909 — No. 48

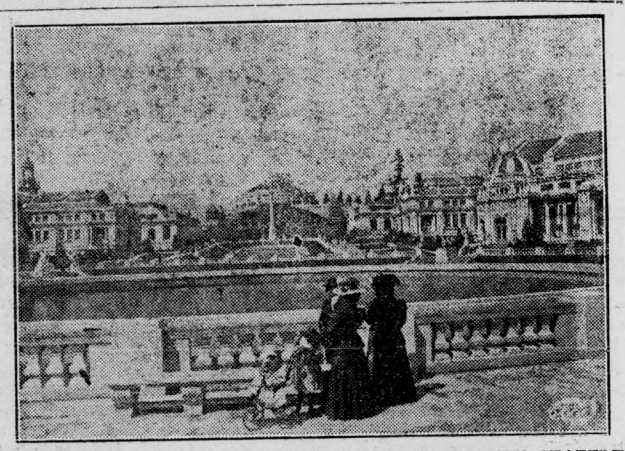


MANUFACTURERS BUILDING.

On the eastern side of Geyser Basin, at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, the handsome Manufacturers Building looks across the restless waters of the Cascades and the flashing foam of "Old Faithful," the reproduction of its namesake in Yellowstone National Park.

Its location is the most central of any of the exposition buildings, and its architectural design is especially fitting for the position it has been given. It was one of the first great exhibition palaces to be completed, and before the end of last year was ready for the reception of its vast collection of exhibits. It will house a magnificent assortment of the highest examples of man's ingenuity and invention, and within its walls will be gathered specimens of manufactured articles from the workshops of every nation of importance in the world.

It overlooks the finest of the formal gardens of the exposition, and its splendid line of pergolas, with their vine-covered columns and blossoming flowers, complete a restful and pleasing view. At no part of the grounds can be seen a more beautiful illuminating effect than is presented from the open pergolas during the late evening and early night. A million sparkling electric bulbs flash their white lights through the waters and, scattered throughout the greenery, hundreds of electroliers mingle their many hues with the riot of colors. Looking down the gentle slope of Rainier Avenue the floating craft of two lakes is brought into vision and adds the delights of a broad, light-sprinkled stretch of forest-enclosed waters to the whole effect.



A VIEW OF THE COURT OF HONOR, A.-Y.-P. EXPOSITION, SEATTLE.

All of the principal buildings of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition are grouped in close compass around the Cascades and Geyser Basin and the flower beds which line each.

Geyser Basin is in the foreground, and just beyond it show the steps in the Cascades.

Notice to fruit growers of Campbell and vicinity. We have the agency of many of the largest canneries and commission merchants of San Francisco, Oakland and Los Angeles. We will be in position to handle a large portion of the green fruit in this section. As we will not have a regular agent in the field, it would be well for the growers to call on us before disposing of their fruits.

The Freshmen had a picnic Wednesday.

The Alumni of the high School gave a reception to the Seniors last Saturday night which was a great inovation. The Seniors were told to follow Mr. Calvin Bohnett, who led them around to Miss Cora Rodeck's place where one course of a dinner was given them, and then they walked to the home of Miss Charlotte Davis and got another course, then to the house of Miss Coupeland and from there to Calvin Bohnett's. Needless to say the dinner was well digested. After the meal, a grand good time was had.

The Halo of Heroism

By Captain F. A. MITCHEL

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"My son," said the old civil war veteran, "I do not wish you to follow in my footsteps in the matter of war, 'War,' as General Sherman said, 'is hell.'"

"But, father, think of the glory!"

"The glory often falls where it does not belong and is usually overrated. I will tell you a story to illustrate my point. Two young men went from our town to the civil war. They were friends and had been schoolmates. We will call them Tom Ford and Billy Chamberlin. They were both ordinary young fellows among their associates until they became soldiers, and then they were transformed into premature heroes. The girls would have nothing to do with the other boys, whose civilian clothes seemed very commonplace beside the uniforms. Tom Ford was a tall, handsome fellow, and one of the girls suddenly discovered that she loved him. And she did. A girl may be caught by the veriest tinsel.

Kemyji, the Japanese laborer who was found guilty of complicity in the murder of John Kyne, a Southern Pacific section foreman, near Gilroy, last November, was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment. Johnson says in his petition that there are between 3,000 and 5,000 Johnsons in San Francisco, and he doesn't care to have his name listed among them because of the confusion that has resilted from being the possessor of such a proud Danish name. He wants the court to let him take the name of Dierup, which he says was the name of his father before the latter embarked from Denmark for this country.

JAPANESE SUGAR PLANTATION WORKMEN MAY BE DISPLACED

Hawaiian Planters Will Make an Effort to Get Portugese Laborers.

Vancouver, B. C.—H. L. Baldwin, head of the firm of Alexander Baldwin & Co., the largest sugar planters in Hawaii, announces that on account of the difficulty planters had lately experienced with Japanese workmen, Japanese labor in the islands would be dropped and Portuguese will be imported to take their places.

A. J. Campbell, former Territorial Secretary for Hawaii, left Vancouver last week for London, en route to Portugal, empowered to arrange for the emigration of 10,000 workmen from Portuguese towns and the Azores to Hawaii. Seven thousand Japanese are now on strike in Hawaii. Industrial affairs have reached a climax because of the inability of the planters to handle their labor. Baldwin says that every Japanese workman will be discharged if Portuguese can be obtained.

United Workmen Being Readjusted.

Los Angeles.—All Pacific Coast jurisdictions of the Ancient Order of United Workmen are expected to join the Nebraska grand jurisdiction in its secession from the Supreme Grand Lodge, according to the Grand Master, and a committee from Nebraska is now here on the way to San Francisco to press the campaign. The stated purpose of the step, which doubtless means a split in the Order, is to make possible a more satisfactory method of adjusting losses, the courts having prevented, by injunction, the sending of money by one jurisdiction to another.

Arizona, New Mexico, Washington, Utah, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Colorado and California are included in the secession program of the committee, which consists of A. M. Walling, David City, Neb., Grand Master; Joseph Oberfeld, Sidney, chairman; S. A. Searle, Omaha, and Charles H. Denny, Fairbury. The Supreme Grand Lodge is organized under the laws of Texas, and injunctions issued last fall are directed against it. The Nebraska men think they have a remedy.

Jewelers to Protect Horned Toads.

Portland, Ore.—Jewelers of this State will go on record as opposed to the slaughtering of the harmless little "horned toad," which is now being made into hatpin heads and worn by the fashionable women of the country.

E. J. Jaeger, a manufacturing jeweler of this city and member of the Oregon Humane Society as well, is the particular champion of the horned toad, and through his efforts the jewelers' association of Los Angeles will be notified of the sentiment of the Oregon association on the matter.

The little horned toad inhabits the plains of the Sacramento and San Joaquin in California and the dry level stretches of Arizona, Texas and New Mexico.

Fifteen Tons of Cherries for Carnival Participants

San Leandro.—Fifteen tons of luscious, fresh picked cherries, inclosed in 15,000 paper bags, were distributed free to the fruit hungry carnival crowds which thronged the streets of San Leandro June 5th in honor of the spring cherry festival.

From the noon hour, when the distribution of cherries was commenced, until the setting sun's last rays flickered across the generous orchards which had yielded up their toothsome crops for the day's entertainment, thousands of people forced their way in a good natured, incessant stream to the distributing booth. There was enough and to spare of the fruit on hand, for throughout the afternoon the ranchers of the hospitable countryside kept sending in fresh loads from their orchards to replenish the ever draining supply at headquarters. When night had fallen and the demands of the distributers ceased there were still cherries in sight. "We could feed the whole world on cherries," said the festival directors proudly, when their labors were concluded.

The cherry festival, the first in Alameda county's history, was a great success. George Smith, the venerable planter of the first cherry tree in San Leandro, placed the carnival crown upon the head of the queen elect, Miss Bessie Best. The coronation ceremonies took place in the town plaza, with thousands of onlookers. Queen Bess, attended by her ladies in waiting, Miss Alice Locke and Miss Mabel Furtado, and the royal chamberlain, W. J. Locke, was driven to the plaza in a regal equipage, drawn by two richly caparisoned steeds. Before her marched the royal San Leandro band.

It is estimated that not less than 25,000 people visited San Leandro during the day. The town was elaborately decorated with flags and bunting, which lent a gay touch of color to the green beauty of the orchards and gardens. The decorative scheme was carried out in red and green, the colors of the cherry.

Fleet of Aeroplanes Wanted by United States Army

Washington.—Under the instructions of Brigadier General Allen, chief of the signal corps of the army, plans have been prepared showing what is necessary for the aerial defense of the United States.

If Congress would appropriate the money he would begin at three points along the Atlantic Coast—Washington, New York and Philadelphia—where dirigible balloons and aeroplanes will be stationed. At each point one large balloon and possibly an aeroplane would be placed. This would require more than $500,000.

General Allen has had prepared a map showing points along the other borders of the country and in the interior where he believes there should be aerial defense stations. To carry out the entire scheme would require about $5,000,000.

The War Department is convinced, in the light of the achievements of the Zeppelin balloon, that the era of aerial navigation has arrived. It hopes Congress also will awake to a realization of the fact and that appropriations will be made sufficient to permit this Government to keep pace with European nations. In anticipation of favorable action by Congress, the signal corps has been instructed to prepare the plans referred to.

"The plans will include an elaborate system of vertical searchlights by which the airships will be guided during night flights," said an army officer recently.

"These lights will mark the various batteries and the balloon depots and they also will be used in signaling the swiftly flying ships overhead. Most of the signaling, however, probably will be done through the medium of the wireless."

Must Go to Prison for Being "a Good Fellow"

San Francisco.—Tears streaming down his face, to all appearances broken in body and spirit, Charles H. Turner, the defaulting Grand Secretry of the Native Sons of the Golden West, pleaded guilty of embezzlement before Judge Cabaniss, threw himself on the mercy of the court, and was sentenced to three years' imprisonment in San Quentin. Turner was taken across the bay Monday afternoon. With continuous good conduct he may reduce the actual period of confinement to two years and four months.

"This is the result of being a good fellow," Turner said to Louis H. Mooser, a Grand Trustee of the Order, as he was led from the court by a deputy Sheriff, after being sentenced.

"Yes, but what excuse had you for being a good fellow with money that did not belong to you?" returned Mooser.

The charge to which Turner pleaded guilty was that of embezzling $135.50. His entire defalcations, however, amount to a little more than $6,700.

Paper Pulp Refuse of Great Value as By-Product

New York.—The vigorous campaign which has been waged for ten years to stop the pollution of lakes and fresh water streams throughout the country, and notably in New York State, by the wood pulp mills, is believed to have been terminated by the discovery that the refuse from these paper mills is too valuable as a by-product to be thrown away. Experiments by pulp mills in Clinton county are reported to show that the refuse from the mills which heretofore has been dumped into lakes and streams can be utilized as a substitute for corn meal and molasses, used for core casting in iron foundries and as a top dressing for macadam roads, and for other purposes. The mills in New York State alone have been dumping annually thousands of millions of gallons of sulphite waste into the streams and lakes. It is expected that the new discovery will stop this.

Strange Disease Kills Hundreds of Swarms of Bees

Berkeley.—Fearful of disease, which has already killed hundreds of swarms in the vicinity of Fresno, the raisers of honey bees have asked Ralph Benton, head of the department of agriculture of the university, to suggest a remedy. Joeb Christman, inspector of apiaries of Fresno county, has put up a good fight against the disease, but has announced that he is baffled by the strange malady, which threatens to exterminate all the bees in the vicinity of Fresno.

Whether a germ disease or some tiny insect has attacked the bees the university authorities have not determined, but the plague is one of the most serious they have yet encountered. It attacks the bee in all stages of development, and differs from the ordinary malady which kills the larva just before being sealed up for the long sleep from which it evolves a full grown insect.

STUDENTS CALLED TO LUCRATIVE POSITIONS

University Authorities Find Demand for Graduates Greater Than Supply.

Berkeley.—Bright student graduates of the engineering colleges of the university have departed for the East, where they will be employed as engineers in the electrical department of the Westinghouse Engineering Company of Pittsburg.

The students who have gone to accept the positions are Leon S. Blackman of San Francisco, F. V. Carleton of Oakland, E. A. Huffey of Sacramento, R. W. Pinger of Berkeley, Willard C. Johnson of Red Bluff, and Harmon F. Fischer of Berkeley.

More than 90 per cent of the graduates of the engineering departments of the university have accepted good positions this year, most of them from the college of mechanics. The university authorities are surprised at the number of requests for student graduates and in many cases the demand is far greater than the supply.

Miser Dies in the Almshouse.

San Francisco.—Peter Finigan is dead and buried. Now it is revealed that for the last three years he had lived at the almshouse at the expense of the county, while speculating in stocks with varying success and has left over $6,000 for alleged relatives to fight over.

Finigan was once in possession of a fortune estimated at $40,000, but the stock market "got him" and the $40,000 dwindled to nothing.

Under an ordinance recently passed at the instigation of Superintendent C. M. Wollenburg of the almshouse, a bill against Finigan's estate for $15 a month for his board will be presented.

Peter Finigan was born in County Cavan, Ireland, in 1833, being at the time of his death 76 years old. In the '50's, led on by the lure of gold, he came to California and located at Red Bluff. He was more than successful in his mining operations and quickly accumulated a competence. Then, in the boom days of the Comstock, he began to dabble in stocks and his money took wings.

All the directors except one reside in the Edgewood district, two miles northwest of this city.

No Trace of Condor Wreck.

Victoria, B. C.—After making a search of the locality in which it was reported that the wreck of the British warship Condor, lost with all hands eight years ago, was located, H. J. He believes that the spar washed ashore recently, and thought to be from the Condor, came from the wreck of the Pass of Melford.

SIX TOES TO A FOOT.

Farming Community Remarkable for General Freak of Nature.

On the line between Lincoln and Sagadahoc counties is a settlement of thrifty farming folks who have a peculiarity which is but little known outside, says a Bangor (Me.) correspondent of the New York Herald. It is not visible and a stranger might go there year in and year out without ever discovering that they were any different from ordinary persons in a farming community. They are peculiar for the number of people in the settlement who have six toes on each foot, one more than they really ought to have and one more on each foot than they are entitled to.

The six-toe belt lies partly in the town of Dresden in Lincoln County and partly in Woolwich in Sagadahoc County. Just how many people there are who have more than their share of toes in that vicinity would be hard to say, but there is quite a number, and the way in which they came by them is a mystery in the first place, although there are a number of traditions as to how it happened.

Like many country districts, the people have been born, brought up, settled on farms in the vicinity and married into each other's families until time has produced a number of six-toed people in a comparatively small community.

The settlement is an ordinary country place, in which is a store or two, a postoffice and a grange hall which serves as a meeting place for all social occasions which are held in the homes of the people of the vicinity.

Rather than being a benefit to them, the extra toe is somewhat of an affliction in a number of ways, especially in getting shoes to fit them, for no shoemaker has yet ventured to manufacture a special line of boots for six-toed persons. So much of a bother has this been to some of the people that they have submitted to surgical treatment and had the offensive sixth member removed, that they might wear shoes much the same as others.

At a time, several years ago, when it was all the rage to wear the extreme pointed toed shoes these people were in a sorry plight. To crowd six toes into a shoe with a capacity for three, but in which vain man often crowded five, was too much for these people. They were fairly ostracized from being in the fashionable swim by the freak of nature which put them out of the running. Being possessed of sound sense they submitted to the inevitable and waited until their five-toed brethren had become crippled by the freak styles and then they were in the swim again with broad-toed shoes.

How it happened that this colony of six-toed people settled in this place is hard to explain. Tradition has it that some man of several generations ago settled in that vicinity, and while at work in the woods split a toe with an ax, and, instead of adhering, the two parts separated and in the course of time as the generations passed the sixth toe made its appearance in a more perfect form. This theory does not find many ready believers among the people there, who have given up accounting for it.

The sixth toe is an offshoot from the little toe of the ordinary foot. It is perfect in shape, although it is not always in alignment with the other five toes of the foot. For this reason it is troublesome, and becomes more so as the people advance in years.

A Mean Landlord.

Mrs. Upton (to lady caller)—I do think we've got the meanest, most penurious and grasping old Shylock of a landlord that ever lived.

Caller—Why do you remain here, then? Why not try some other place if you don't like the landlord?

Mrs. Uptom—That's just it! He's that mean he won't let us get far enough behind with the rent so it is not really any object to us to move.—Pick-Me-Up.

The Cost of Living.

"Man wants but little here below"—
once that perhaps was true;
I have no right to think I know, no more,
indeed have you;
Man may have once been satisfied to skimp along somehow,
But it is not to be denied that much is needed now.

Odious Comparison.

Rivers (perplexed by a temporary lapse of memory)—Brooks, how does that quotation go—"O, woman! In our hours of ease uncertain, coy, and hard to please, and variable as"—what?

Brooks—I think it's "variable as the price of school books in different cities."

Conditional.

Dinguss—It's awfully good of you, old chap, to lend me this fiver. Some day I may be able to return the favor.

Shadbolt—Why, yes, Dinguss; you'll have to return it, you know, if you expect ever to get another one from me.—Chicago Tribune.

RIPE OLIVES.

A Trick Which People in California Play on Newcomers.

"I have just returned from California," said the traveler, "and for your information, in case you ever wander thither, let me post you on one of the merry little jests which the inhabitants love to ring in on the innocent tenderfoot.

"About the first thing they'll run you up against the California ripe olives. Ever eat them? You can hardly get them here because they won't stand shipment. And they're mighty good.

"Most real olive eaters prefer them to the ordinary green pickled olive. The ripe olives are pickled also, you understand, and come out of the brine jet black.

"After you have eaten and approved, they will lead you on by remarking:

"'Well, if you like them that way you'll like them better fresh. Just stroll out to the orchard with me and we'll have one.'

"Then they lead you out to one of their long lanes of trees. I pause to remark that you don't know what olive green and olive brown mean until you've seen those colors in that slim, graceful little tree.

"There are fresh olives all right, hanging among the gray leaves and looking mighty tempting. You pick one, and bite into it.

"Whew! Bitter? I can taste it yet. It's all the quinine and rhubarb and wormwood in the world, combined in a nasty, haunting bitterness that hangs to you until you have eaten two meals. It is an oily bitterness that gets into the corners and crannies of your mouth and won't be washed out.

"When you recover a little they explain that the brine takes out the bitterness, and that's why olives are pickled."—New York Sun.

Nearest His Heart.

After the Civil war was over General Sherman loved to talk about it and about "his boys," as he used to call the men who had served under him, and who came to see him from all parts of the country. Toward the close of his days this gave rise to a pathetically human incident which the American Magazine recently printed.

Once, while the late Augustus Saint-Gaudens was modeling a figure of Sherman, Robert Louis Stevenson visited New York. Stevenson had a passion for the study of war. He knew more about fighting than most fighting men, and was especially interested in the Civil war, and in Sherman's spectacular campaign in Georgia.

He asked Saint-Gaudens to introduce him to the general, and the next day the sculptor told Sherman that Stevenson wanted to meet him.

"Who is he?" asked Sherman, "one of my boys?"

"No," said Gaudens, "he's the great writer—Stevenson."

"Never heard of him," said Sherman. "What did he write?"

"Why, he wrote 'Treasure Island' and 'Kidnaped' and 'David Balfour'—"

"Don't know them," said the general.

"And he wrote 'Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde.'"

"That's a good play. I saw Dick Mansfield play it. Well, fetch him along."

Saint-Gaudens, the kindest and tenderest creature that ever lived, would never think of wounding Stevenson's sensitive soul by telling him what Sherman had said.

"The general wants you to come around to-morrow," said he to the author.

"Does he really want to see me?" Stevenson asked.

"Of course, he does," said Saint-Gaudens. "Want to see you? Why you should have seen his face when I told him you were coming."

They went to the studio the next day. When Sherman arrived, Saint-Gaudens came forward most impressively and laying great stress on the author's name, said:

"General Sherman, this is Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson."

"Ah, how do you do, Mr. Stevenson?" said the general. "Glad to meet you! One of my boys?"

On a Pinch.

"For the present," said the political magnate, "you will have to be satisfied with filling some temporary vacancy from time to time."

"I'll be more than satisfied," faltered the despairing officeseeker, "with anything that will fill the vacancy in my stomach from time to time!"

"Well, Tom and Billy marched away. They did nothing but march and lie in camp for awhile and began to wish they could get into a fight. When they did get into a fight it had hardly begun before they wished it were over. After a charge by the enemy Billy was trying to find the remains of the regiment that had gone in under a perfect alignment with flags flying, but all he could find were dead and wounded. Passing a wounded officer, Billy heard him groan and, picking him up, was about to carry him away when a volley was poured into them. The officer begged Billy to drop him, but Billy wouldn't and amid a shower of bullets took him to cover behind a stone wall.

"The officer died a few hours later in Billy's arms. He begged Billy to accept a handsome gold watch he wore, and when Billy declined, saying that he might be accused of rifling a dead body, the dying man produced a pencil and paper and wrote down how Billy's bravery had got him to cover and that he had given Billy his watch in remembrance of the same. Only he didn't write Billy's name at all, for Billy gave him another one, and this is how that happened:

"After getting the officer to cover, the poor fellow's groans were heartrending and his cries for water worse than his groans. To get the horrible sound out of his ears Billy said he'd go and find some water. As they were on elevated ground, he knew there was none, but he couldn't stand the agony any longer without a rest. He crossed the field where his regiment had been cut up and suddenly came upon his friend Tom Ford lying on his back, looking straight up at the peaceful heavens. Tom's front teeth had been knocked out, and he had lost an eye. Billy bent over him, and the sight, if he had not been made sick of war already, certainly completed his horror of it. He spoke to the wounded man, who did not appear to recognize him. He was breathing, so Billy knew he was not dead, but he was disfigured.

"Billy now had two wounded men on his hands. He went back to the one he had left to see if he was dead. He found him still alive, and it was then that he gave Billy his watch. He asked Billy his name to put it in the paper he wrote. A sudden thought struck Billy. It occurred to him how his friend, Tom, would appear to his girl disfigured as he was, and he thought he might do something to help the matter. He told the officer to put in Thomas Ford. The officer did as he was asked and soon after drew his last breath.

CAME UPON TOM FORD.

"As soon as the officer was dead Billy hurried back to Ford, whom he found in the same condition as before. Billy shoved the watch rolled in the paper with the writing on it into Ford's pocket, then carried him to a temporary hospital and left him to be taken care of by the surgeons. Soon after this he found the remnant of his regiment and was plugging away again at the enemy.

"Now, Billy didn't really think much of anything he had done. It never occurred to him that there was any bravery in carrying the officer to cover. He had done the same thing before and had not considered himself a hero. But he thought the incident might be appreciated for more than it was worth by the folks at home and make Tom's girl stick to him if Tom recovered. Tom did recover and, having no remembrance of the watch and paper in his pocket, concluded that he must have saved some one and had the memory of it all obliterated by his wound.

"Tom went home and was discharged. Billy fought on to the close of the war, when he went home to find Tom a much lauded hero. He had married his girl, who was very proud of him.

PUT THE WATCH IN FORD'S POCKET.

"Billy was delighted at the success of his ruse, for, you see, he knew Tom would need something in lieu of his eye and his teeth, though Billy didn't expect that his own carrying a wounded man for a few seconds would result in covering his friend with the halo of heroism for a whole lifetime."

"And did Billy never regret that he had turned this halo over to another?"

"Never. Had he kept it for himself he would have lived under a feeling that the work performed was entirely incommensurate with the lifetime of praise it evoked."

"But, father, if Billy has a son isn't he entitled to the halo by inheritance?"

"Oh, yes! You're entitled to its reflection."

"Father, why have you never told me this before?"

This is one of the minor tragedies of the great conflict which have been overshadowed by the record of greater events. There are many like it still unwritten, all breathing the spirit of heroism and sacrifice.

YOU CAN ENJOY

A good meal—good things to eat after you have lost teeth replaced. Delaying loses more teeth and is more expensive when you are ready for the attention they should have now.

If you have only a few real teeth left, then it is all the more reason that you should act at once.

One reason you should try our services—new patients are glad to send others.

Heroes of Faith. Heb. xi:1-40.

Golden Text—Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Heb. xi:1.

Verses 1-3—In what respects are faith and hope similar?

If a desirable thing is possessed by faith, does that give as much, or similar satisfaction, as the possession of the thing itself?

What is the ground of our faith, that "the worlds were framed by the word of God"?

Why do we admire the men of faith of past years?

Verses 4-5—Abel had a truly religious nature; now was this nature the result of his faith, or was his faith the result of his nature?

Does this record mean that Enoch's translation was directly caused by a specific act of faith, or that his general life of faith made him such a good man that God translated him without death?

Verse 6—Faith is sometimes based upon outward evidence; sometimes upon personal revelation; sometimes upon intuition, and sometimes upon composite grounds; what moral or spiritual qualities, therefore, are necessary for becoming a man of faith? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Why is faith necessary in order to please God?

Verse 7—What was Noah's faith based upon, and wherein was his faith meritorious?

Verses 8-12—What was the difference, if any, between Abraham's faith and that of the Pilgrim fathers, when they left the old country for the American land of promise?

I take it that Abraham, and the Pilgrim fathers, while in communion with God, felt a drawing to go to the rich country in the distance about which they had heard: that they took this drawing to be the voice of God; and in this faith they started out; what evidence is there that their faith was true, and that such faith is always dependable?

Verses 13-16—Why is it that all nations and peoples, in all time, so far as we have any record, believe in, and "desire a better country, that is an heavenly"?

Verses 17-19—Give from memory the account of Abraham offering up his son Isaac.

What is the particular virtue, in Abraham obeying God in the matter of offering up Isaac?

Would it be a virtue or a vice in these days, if any man should do the same thing as Abraham did?

Verses 20-31—Suppose the persons mentioned in these wonderful verses, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, Moses and Rahab, had been lacking faith in God, in these critical moments of their lives, what would have been the difference in the results?

Does faith in God always make the present happy, and picture in glowing colors the future?

Verses 32-40—Have men distinguished for their faith always been noted for their goodness?

This is a thrilling account of the exploits of the men of faith; give me an account of the achievements of men noted for their lack of faith.

Poultry Secrets Disclosed!

Is this cock properly held? "Poultry Secrets" tells you how to carry fowls, and scores of secrets far more important and hitherto unrevealed.

THERE are secrets in the poultry business, as in any other; the best methods and newest discoveries seldom reach the amateur poultry raiser and the general public for years after they are originated. A new method of absolutely insuring the fertility of setting eggs, for example, has

and its discoverer is not to be blamed for keeping it to himself. Now, for the first time, the secrets of many of the most successful poultrymen are made public. No confidence has been violated; every secret has been

Obtained in an Honorable Way

(1) by outright purchase; (2) by free permission given the author, Michael K. Boyer; (3) by collecting old, valuable, but little known methods; (4) by Mr. Boyer's own experience covering 30 busy years. Since this book was first advertised four or five months ago, it has been necessary to print eight editions, and many new and valuable secrets have been added to the original book.

Read What Purchasers Say

I received Farm Journal and "Poultry Secrets," and am very much pleased with both. The secrets are worth their weight in gold. Why, I paid $5 for the sprouted oats method. You certainly give a fellow over his money's worth.
ANDREW F. G. MORLEY, Utica, N. Y.

Received your book of "Poultry Secrets." It's an exceptionally instructive work, and worth $10 to any progressive poultryman. I would not care to take that for my copy if I could not get another.
ROBT. F. KINGSLAND, Montville, N. J.

As to "Poultry Secrets," I will say, I have lectured on this subject over the greater portion of this state for the past fifteen years, and have about every book that is published on this subject in my library, and I consider this book of yours the most valuable I know by far for the general public.
L. A. RICHARDSON, Marine, Ill.

Your book "Poultry Secrets" received, also the February and March numbers of the Farm Journal. Eminently satisfied with all three. Got more than my money's worth on any one page of either publication.
F. L. VANDERBURGH, Hereford, Texas.

A Few of the More Important Secrets

Boyer's new system for insuring fertility of setting eggs.
Wood's ingenious method for saving the weak incubator chicks.
I. K. Felch's System of In-breeding without the least loss of vitality.
Selecting the laying hens—the central thought of the so-called Hogan, Potter and Palmer Systems.
The Philo System, a brief outline telling what it is and for what it is valuable.
Several new food formulas, many of them the same as expensive "patented" foods.
The "15-cents-a-bushel" method of producing green feed.
Greiner's Corn Feeding System; and other new rules for feeding corn and grain.
Truslow's Secret of obtaining high market prices for poultry stock.
The Angell method, admirably adapted to the small flock in village or suburb.
Grundy's method of obtaining bulky food at a cost of 8 cents a bushel.
Dr. Wood's Secret of Laying Food for producing eggs.
Professor Rice's Fat Hen Secret explaining why lean hens don't lay.

AND MANY OTHERS, NOT ENUMERATED HERE

It would be absurd to expect every bit of this information to be unknown to everyone; we make no such claim. But to the great majority of poultrymen it will be absolutely new, and of great value.

ABOUT FARM JOURNAL—Farm Journal has for thirty years made a specialty of poultry; this department is ably edited and more valuable than many specialized poultry papers. This is only one section, however, of a remarkable magazine—a monthly with 600,000 subscribers. NOT a dreary, technical farm paper, badly printed on cheap paper, full of medical and trashy advertisements, but a magazine for the home — town, village or country; well printed and illustrated, clean, clever, quaint, and always cheerful; intensely practical; equally at home on a thousand acre farm or on a suburban back garden; and in a dozen ways UNLIKE ANY OTHER PAPER.

OUR OFFER: { One Copy Poultry Secrets / Farm Journal - 2 Years / Press 6 months on trial } All 3 for $1.

(We Cannot sell "Poultry Secrets" by itself—only in this Combination.)
